

The True Story of Manon Rhéaume, the First Woman to Play in the NHL

On September 23, 1992, Manon Rhéaume made history when she became the first woman to play in a regular season National Hockey League (NHL) game. Rhéaume, a goaltender from Quebec, Canada, played for the Tampa Bay Lightning against the St. Louis Blues. She stopped 16 of the 21 shots she faced, and the Lightning won the game 4-1.

Rhéaume's journey to the NHL was not an easy one. She faced discrimination and skepticism from many people who believed that women could not play hockey at the highest level. But Rhéaume refused to give up on her dream. She practiced tirelessly, and she eventually proved her doubters wrong.
